Current Comment

Political Independence.

"The Rutland News is trying to snap the party whip in the interests of the candidacy of its citizen, John A. Mead, declaring that the talk of defection comes from a 'few soreheads' and a 'few poor losers.' But, instead of gathering them in, such talk will be calculated to alienate still further those voters of independent thought and action who are affiliated with the Republican party, but who refuse to be led to the water and also forced to drink. Those voters are not 'soreheads' or 'poor losers'; but on the contrary they are men of free mind, open to convictions, and not bound down by party ties. Therefore, the feeble effort to vote for a Democratic candidate for governor of Vermont, if they really believe that Charles D. Watson more nearly fills the requirements than does Dr. Mead."

"The St. Albans Messenger and the St. Johnsbury Caledonian, which were given a certain lecture by the Rutland evening contemporary, are exponents of that advanced political thinking which is bound to do the state of Vermont a great good. The old idea of whatever is right in the Republican party of the state is giving place to the belief that everything is not right in the dominant party, and steps toward removing what is not right are being taken. Such newspapers as take that position have a right to exercise their independence without meriting the designation of 'soreheads' or 'poor losers.'"—Barre Times.

It is pretty hard to know just which side The Messenger is shining on in these days. Several contemporaries that didn't wet over in the recent campaign, but hung around on the bank and tied knots in the clothes of some of the rest of us, are now complaining that The Messenger, among others, has stultified itself by its attempt to acknowledge the result of the Republican state convention as a fact and make the best of it, while explicitly reserving in so many words its undisturbed belief that the principle for which it contended was still right and would ultimately prevail.

Now comes the Rutland News and attempts to lash The Messenger into line, because it has dared to suggest that there will be a noticeable falling off from the normal Republican vote this fall on account of a very prevalent feeling that in the nomination for governor the state convention did not represent the sentiments of a good many good Republicans.

What can a newspaper say about this campaign that will please anybody?—St. Albans Messenger.

A Hot Weather Story.

James H. Scarr, New York's weather expert, was talking about the heat.

"Our summer heat is, of course, a pretty formidable thing," he said, "but it's not quite so formidable as some people, for their own good, try to make out."

"When I read the terrible descriptions of our heat that appear in steamship and seashore advertisements, I wink to myself and think of Sam Thomas."

"Sam Thomas was a farm boy. The farmer, while mowing one hot day, sent him off to the general store for a plug of tobacco. Sam, on his return, broke the farmer's sharpening stone—he stepped on it in jumping over the fence. But he kept on his way as though nothing had happened, and then, after he had handed the farmer the tobacco, he said:

"Ain't the heat terrible, boss? I half believe your sharpenin' stone'll be broke by the time you get back to the end of the field. It was bendin' nearly double with the heat of the sun as I came by."
